DETAILED ACTION

1. This Office Action is responsive to communications filed on May 8, 2006.

Claims 1-20 are pending in the case.

Response to Amendment

2. Applicant's request for reconsideration of the finality of the rejection of the last Office action is persuasive and, therefore, the finality of that action is withdrawn.

Drawings

3. The amended drawings were received on May 1, 2006. These drawings are acceptable.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

5. Claims 1-3, 6-8, 11-13, and 16-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Sukegawa et al, hereinafter Sukegawa (US 5,978,894).

Regarding claims 1, 6, 11, and 16, as shown in Figures 1-9, Sukegawa discloses a method of transacting network data, comprising:

determining whether data being processed data is network data (e.g., network adaptor 30 takes charge of the data transfer between nodes, and transfer data to another node; col. 6: lines 31-33); and transacting, if the data is network data, the data using a virtual IP address the virtual address being an IP address given to a data holding device in the multiprocessor system (col. 6: line 34 – col. 7: line 46).

Regarding claims 2, 7, 12, and 17, Sukegawa also discloses the data holding device is a buffer (370; col. 19: lines 1 – col. 20: line 8).

Regarding claims 3, 8, 13, and 18, Sukegawa also discloses the buffer (370) is implemented using memory allocation (col. 13: line 39 – col. 14: line 65).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. Claims 4-5, 9-10, 14-15, and 19-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sukegawa, in view of Potter (US 6,505,269).

Regarding claims 4, 9, 14, and 19, Sukegawa discloses substantially all the claimed limitations, except the buffer contends for access to one of the limited physical interfaces.

Potter teaches the buffer contends for access to one of the limited physical interfaces (e.g., the memory arrays operate independently to avoid contention among the controllers; col. 7: lines 34-45).

Since Sukegawa and Potter teach analogous arts, relating to transferring network data using improved virtual-to-physical address translation techniques, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to utilize Potter' addressing scheme in Sukegawa's system, motivated by the need to reduce performance bottleneck and thus, improve data transmission quality and rate.

Regarding claims 5, 10, 15, and 20, the combination of Sukegawa and Potter also discloses before transmitting the data to the physical interface, the virtual IP address replaced by a destination IP address (e.g., forwarding information based on destination IP address; Potter: col. 5: lines 49-65).

Since Sukegawa and Potter teach analogous arts, relating to transferring network data using improved virtual-to-physical address translation techniques, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to utilize Fesas' addressing scheme in Sukegawa's system, motivated by the need to reduce performance bottleneck and thus, improve data transmission quality and rate.
